

International Women's Day (IWD) March 8, 2025

International Women's Day is celebrated each year on March 8 and carries through the month of March. This year's theme is Acceleration Action. It is a global call to recognize and champion the strategies, resources, and initiatives driving progress for women's advancement.

Although significant barriers to gender equality persist, the right actions and support can pave the way for meaningful progress for women worldwide. Gender equity is necessary for the advancement of women – socially, economically, and politically especially where the intersections of race, sexuality, disability and culture create greater barriers to access to equitable participation in society.
